

Fall 2014

Fall is on its way! Cooler breezes have been settling in around the boatyards, letting us know summer is almost over. These changes will make the Bay the perfect spot to enjoy Autumn on the water.

With that said, many of you have already scheduled your haul out for winter storage. We recommend you call in to reserve a spot in the yard. Last year we maxed out of boat stands early in the season, therefore we have ordered new stands to increase our capacity this year.

Last winter was extremely harsh for this area with lots of ice, cold weather, and snow. This year is calling for similar conditions or possibly even colder. We highly recommend to get your boat winterized, to withstand these cold conditions. On our websites we have our fall decommission checklist regarding winterizations that you can fill out and send back to us. We also recommend you review our winter guide to help make sure your boat is fully prepared for the winter months.

Hurricane season is not over yet. Last year, we were lucky to have the season pass by with no immediate threats and so far this year we have been fortunate as well. However, storms can still appear in the these last few months . Please remember to sign up for our hurricane haul out list. You can contact Stingray Point Boat Works (Broad Creek) at 804-776-7070 or daniele@stingraypointboatworks.com. You can contact Chesapeake Boat Works (Fishing Bay) at 804-776-8833 or missy@chesapeakeboatworks.com.

Just a reminder at Stingray Point we have a huge Marine Travel Lift, capable of hauling up to 55 tons and 24+ foot beams! We have also added a hydraulic yard trailer to move boats around the yard more efficiently. This yard trailer will be used at Chesapeake Boat Works as well! You can check it out on our boat works news website: www.theboatworksnews.com.

Here's hoping each of you have fair winds and tranquil seas over the season!

Jon, Rick, Lee Farinholt, & crew